

The following is a list of Ignition Interlock Device Installers. It is your responsibility to contact an installer and to arrange for the installation of a device in the vehicle you will be operating.

→ Important Note: All holders of a Vermont Ignition Interlock Restricted License (RDL) must have a camera-equipped ignition interlock device installed in the vehicle you will be operating. When you contact an installer (or the manufacturer), you will need to tell them you are required to have a camera-equipped device. If you do not install a camera-equipped device, you will not be allowed to drive the vehicle until a camera-equipped device is installed.

Some manufacturer's who have not yet recruited a Vermont installer may refer you to an installer located in New York State, who is near the Vermont border. If that is the case, and you wish to obtain their ignition interlock device, it is acceptable for you to use an out-of-state installer.

Please keep in mind that you are responsible for all the costs associated with an ignition interlock device. These costs can include: installation, purchasing or leasing, removal, calibrating, data retrieval, servicing and any other fees charged by the installer/manufacturer. Costs are determined by each individual installer/manufacturer and may vary.
